Lovely Logan

This week's newsletter is dedicated to our lovely Logan and his love for West Ham. I would like to thank all of our families and their wonderful children who have shown such understanding, love and support for the family at this sad time. We feel his loss deeply in school and the warm, encouraging smiles from parents, offers of help and kind words from children has been hugely appreciated. It is often at the worst of times that you witness the best of people. I have spoken with Logan's mum and shared our families love and best wishes, she is very thankful.

Many of you will be unsurprised to hear that your children have been a credit to you and your families in school this week. They have talked openly and with great sensitivity about their views and beliefs. Some have told me that 'it's okay Mrs Aird, Logan will be ok now' and some have reminded me that 'we must always talk about him because that's how we make sure that he stays in our school's heart.'

Although we still grieve, life in school must go on and so it has been reassuring to see the children continuing to engage positively in their lessons and activities. I have seen wonderful phonics in Early Years, beautiful paintings in Lower School, number challenges in Middle School and incredible writing in Upper School. Keep it up children, you are all doing amazingly well! I have promised the children that when we get closer to the summer, we will make plans for how we can create a permanent celebration and memorial for Logan. I suspect that it will be very closely connected to the lovely basket swing he enjoyed spending time on in the summer. When the time comes to make plans, we will of course let families know so that we can all come together to create something really great for him. Rest in Peace lovely boy. x
